Chiswick Green - what the press have been saying

Since launching to the market earlier this year, our latest development, Chiswick Green, has been a hot topic in the global press.

The unique offering at Chiswick Green - which brings together leafy, village living in a well-connected London location - sparked the interest of Luxury Lifestyle Magazine, which described the project as a "rare opportunity to live in one of the capital's most sought-after neighbourhoods".

Similarly, the leading source of news and insight for all things residential property, PrimeResi, also picked up on Chiswick Green's position in one of London's "most in-demand outer enclaves". The publication took a deeper look at what makes the London village quite so desirable, from local hotspots including the Michelin-starred La Trompette and Soho House's High Road House through to its proximity to some of the capital's best-loved parks and green spaces.

Luxury lifestyle magazine, Salon Privé, also picked up on the parkside offering, noting Chiswick Green's "village-like location and abundance of greenery", with Turnham Green on the doorstep and picking out Chiswick House & Gardens, Kew Gardens and Richmond Park as the top spots nearby.

Homing in on how Londoners are falling back in love with apartment living - with a surge in demand fuelled in part by flexible working lifestyles and revival of interest in on-site residents' amenities - Chiswick Green took centre stage in Metro's round-up of London's best new apartments. Here, journalist Andrea Dean picked up on Chiswick Green's generous communal terraces and great location tucked behind Chiswick High Road.

Noting that the capital's "prime new-build residential developments are among the most in-demand in the world", Chiswick Green also made the cut in Mansion Global's round-up of the best new build homes on the market, in which it highlights the developments impressive views across park, river and city as a key reason the homes should be a top choice for buyers.
